Young Farmers Receive Prizes And Awards

Closing banquet of the 34th Annual Farm Young Peoples Week was held recently at Athabasca Hall, University of Alberta. Highlight of the event was presentation of prizes and awards to winners of competitions held during the week. Easterly Echoes

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie McNaughton have been visiting with the former's sister Mrs. W. Sanders.

Mrs. W. Sanders and Mrs. H. Morse spent a few days with friends Mr. and Mrs. E. Patterson of Greenshields.

Arnold Enger attended the baseball school at Renfrew Park, Edmonton with the other Irma boys. He and Garth Tomlinson were picked to play in the final game of the school but unfortunately rain washed out the last day of play.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Patterson were visitors to the city where the latter's mother Mrs. L. Watson, is a patient in the Royal Alexandra hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Lawson, Misses Kate and Irene Younker and Mr. Milt Younker left for Nelson B.C. to curl in the hospital there starting on July 10.

Mrs. A. Taylor, Lois and Myrna left by train for Kamloops B.C. to visit her sister Mrs. J. Holt and family, also see mother Mrs. B. Enger.

Mrs. C. Brickman of Viking in her capacity of W.I. Convener, made an official visit to the Battle River W.I. when it met at the home of Mrs. R. King. The members and visitors enjoyed her talk on the Jubilee Guilds of Newfoundland and she also showed samples of their weaving.

Miss Joy Enger was a Vermilion visitor where she has accepted the position as one of the Grade 1 teachers in that town for the Fall term.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Sanders have a very satisfactory Hillman car.

Mr. Julius Stougard has been in charge of Hansen's Service Station while Mr. Hansen attended the Alberta Provincial Rifle Shoot in Calgary.

Southern Sayings

Mr. and Mrs. Harlen Olsen and family of Berwyn, Alta., are visiting at the home of the latter's sister, Mrs. Buster Reed.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Reber motored to Dayland with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mason on July 1 to attend a Youth Rally there.

Mrs. I. T. Skiles of Hammond, B.C. is visiting here at the home of her sister Mrs. Earl Tomlinson.

Mr. J. Jackson went to Red Deer this week to attend the funeral of his old friend Mr. Pat O'Toole who passed away on Wednesday. Quite a number of folk in this district will remember Pat.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Cairns and family motored to Loughlough last Sunday to visit with Mrs. Cairn's sister, Mrs. Wylie.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Wiese are back in our district for a time while the brush breakers are at work. It is nice to have them back again.

Northern Nuggets

Mr. H. L. Barrs is curling this week in the summer bonspiel at Nelson, B.C.

Mrs. A. R. McRoberts is in Edmonton at the home of her daughter Mrs. Stan Taylor.

Commandant J. M. Hardy arrived from Winnipeg this week to visit with relatives here and at Minburn.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Cox and daughters of Edmonton are visiting at the C. L. Currie home.

The next meeting of the Buffalo Coulee W.I. will be held at the home of Mrs. John Allen on July 17.

Mrs. C. Lancaster entertained at a party in honor of Mrs. J. Murray's 87th birthday on July 3. 22 guests were present, and the guests of honor received many pretty gifts and cards. A feature of the occasion was a three-tiered birthday cake, decorated with 87 candles.

TWO LOSE LIVES IN TRAGIC ACCIDENT AT CLEAR LAKE

Wainwright residents received a severe shock on Sunday when word was passed around of the tragedy at Clear Lake, which snuffed out the lives of two well-known residents.

Edward "Ed" Herbert Gander-ton, 56, and Russell "Rusty" Frederick Gander-ton were the victims of the sad happening which occurred at about 11:45 a.m., shortly after they had embarked for a few hours fishing. The other two occupants of the boat, G. D. Gander-ton of Edmonton and Russell's son Gayle, age 9, escaped.

The party were in an aluminum boat fitted with an outboard motor and had rounded the Telford point shortly before, to fish in the bay. The anchor had been thrown out, and fishing started, when Rusty's line got tangled up with weeds. In an effort to free the line he reversed the position of the motor to pull the boat backward. The motor was on well toward full throttle, and swung the boat with considerable violence, jerking it against the anchor, the rope of which caught the right side of the boat. The craft capsized, throwing the occupants into the water.

At first all seemed well, as the passengers came to the surface and grasped floating paddles, etc. However it was soon that Rusty was in trouble and Ed urged Dinny to Rescue Rusty and Gayle.

Dinny, who was a strong swimmer, immediately made for the shore with the two and landed them without trouble. However it was found on arrival at land that Rusty's condition was even more serious than it had been feared.

In the meantime, Ed, who was clad in heavy clothing, had found it impossible to retain his hold on the paddle and had also fallen prey to the water.

Home Economist News Notes

By Bernice Reed, Home Economist, Wainwright, Alberta

Apples won't crack when they're baked if you remember to peel a one-inch band from the middle of each apple, then stuff it and bake in a moderate oven.

Have you ever tried maple syrup or honey with nuts or raisins and cinnamon to stuff your apples with? Cranberry sauce gives a nice change, and marshmallows with a squeeze of lemon juice are good too. Use your own imagination.

Did you realize that apple juice is cheaper to buy than soft drinks? The 48 ounce tins are the best buy and the very best buy is Vitaminized Apple Juice. The flavor of it is even fresher than clear apple juice. I think, and the cost no more. It's a tasty way to get your daily supply of Vitamin C.

I've heard a few complaints lately about the poor behavior of children and occasionally of grown-ups at public concerts and entertainment of all sorts. Youngsters race up and down aisles, fight or argue, wiggle and talk while people are performing or while the show is on, and no attempt is made to stop them.

Now there's not much use in referring to "when I was young," since we truly are in a different era, but still and all, it seems to me that there is still a code of ethics and manners of some sort. Basically though, we are becoming more selfish (that's another of my ideas) we still have to live with other humans and so must consider them a little, don't you think?

You, as parents, are mostly responsible for teaching your children the right and wrong way of behaving in public and one of the best ways is to give your youngsters the experience of going to public gatherings and behaving properly there. When they are there, though, I think it's up to you to see that they DO behave or else leave them home until they are old enough to appreciate what everyone else has come to hear and can't because of the racket.

Guess that's enough praching at you, isn't it?

IRMA CURLERS AT NELSON BONSPIEL

The Irma Curling club is well represented at the Nelson Summer Bonspiel this week with two rinks in the Men's Division and one rink playing in the Ladies.

The personnel of these rinks are Stuart Fenton, L. Barrs, G. Coulman and F. Drewick; Jack McKay, Wm. Lawson, Milt Younker and Albert Pirks.

Misses Kate and Irene Younker, Miss Donna Coulman and Mrs. Wm. Lawson. It must seem like a dream to be curling this hot weather. We wish them all the best of luck and hope someone will do us a nice write-up for the Times like Mr. Pryce Jones did last year.

The generous rains of the past week have been followed by hot weather and the country looks at its best. The later gardens are making double quick time under these ideal conditions. Let's not mention the weeds!

A Welfare Problem

A RECENT CONFERENCE in Ottawa, called by Hon. R. H. Winters, Minister of Resources, to discuss the welfare of Canada's Eskimo population, has once more drawn attention to the problems affecting that section of the population. There are about 8,000 Eskimos in Canada, not including those living in Labrador. The Department of Resources and Development is in charge of administering their affairs, and the broad policy adopted toward them is to assist them to adjust to the advances of civilization without endangering their independence and way of life. It is the aim of the authorities also to help the Eskimos to build a sound economy and to encourage them to fit themselves to assume the rights and responsibilities of citizenship.

Difficulty Of Checking T.B.

At the conference called by Mr. Winters, representatives of eight government departments, missionaries, and the Hudson's Bay Company discussed problems affecting the Eskimo population. A statement issued at the close of the conference said that those in attendance at it "were generally in agreement that present measures for the care and advancement of the Eskimos are sound, but efforts should be unified and intensified wherever possible." One of the topics discussed was the health and morale of the Eskimo people. Tuberculosis was said to be increasing seriously and the difficulty of isolating active cases quickly, due to the fact that the population is widely scattered, was given as one reason for this increase. Use by the Eskimos of white man's food, and lack of game on which they normally live was also blamed for the spread of T.B., and the need for a vigorous and effective program to control and check the disease was emphasized.

Indicate Need For Planning

Education of the Eskimos was also discussed and it was suggested that new text books should be provided and that more emphasis should be placed on practical training in the twenty-five government and missionary schools now in operation. The effect of government aid in the form of family allowances, old age pensions and pensions for the blind were discussed and it was agreed that the contacts with civilization are affecting the health and morale of the Eskimos. While they are entitled to all the benefits enjoyed by citizens in other parts of Canada, those in attendance at the conference believed that the Eskimos should be encouraged "to live off the land to follow their traditional way of life." Although they form only a small part of the entire population of Canada, the welfare of this group is overlooked and it is apparent that there is need for active and effective planning for their future if their health and economy is to be safeguarded.

Putting Fish To Sleep For Shipping

MONTREAL. — Now they are putting fish to sleep.

The Canadian Forestry Association reported that the Canadian Wildlife Service proved trout could live without water by putting the fish to sleep while they were being transferred from one lake to another.

After they were netted, the trout were anaesthetized by placing two per cent. Ethyl Carbamate in a water tank. Once asleep the fish were packed in ice, sardine fashion, and flown to their new lake home.

The association said that of more than 1,200 trout weighing an average of five pounds each that were transported, less than 10 per cent died. It said the death rate would have been much greater had they been shipped in containers of water.

Today is yesterday's pupil.

FAN TANS

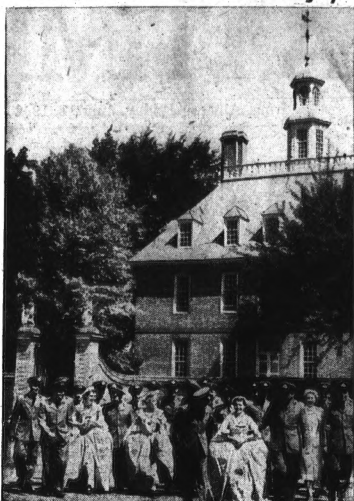

Measure into large bowl, ½ c. lukewarm water, 1 tsp. granulated sugar; stir until sugar is dissolved. Sprinkle slowly with 1 envelope Fleischmann's Fast Rising Dry Yeast. Let stand 10 min., THEN stir well. Scald 1 c. milk and stir in 5 lbs. granulated sugar, 2 cups salted cool to lukewarm. Add to yeast mixture and stir in ½ cup lukewarm water. Beat in 2 c. coarsely branched flour; beat well. Beat in 4 lbs. melted shortening. Work in 2 c. more coarsely branched flour. Knead until smooth and elastic; place in greased bowl and brush top with melted butter or shortening. Cover and set in warm place, free from drafts. Let rise until doubled in bulk. Punch down dough in bowl, grease top and let rise until nearly doubled. Punch down dough and roll out, half at a time, into a rectangle a scant ¼" thick; lift dough, cover with cloth and let rest 5 min. Brush with melted butter or shortening; cut into strips ½" wide. Pinch 7 strips together, cut into 1½" pieces. Place cut side up in greased muffin pan; separate with a little at top. Cover and let rise until doubled in bulk. Bake in hot oven, 350°, 15-20 min.

Coal Industry Is Fundamental To Canada

OTTAWA.—Canada's coal industry is fundamental to the industrial life of the country and is not going to be put out of business by oil discoveries in the west.

That was the promise given by the Ministry of Mines Minister Prud'homme.

He replied to members from coal-mining areas who bemoaned the fate of the coal industry being by conversion of railway locomotives to oil. The coal industry was going through a "squeeze." But the squeeze would only make the industry work harder and it would survive. He told Alberta members they should not forget that gas and oil discoveries in that province tend to put Alberta coal out of business. The Alberta government had a direct responsibility to help the industry and he believed it would. On the federal side the Dominion coal board was doing all possible to help the industry through the transition period.

The minister said federal and Alberta authorities are conferring with a view to establishing quality standards for Alberta coal to enter the Eastern Canadian market. He believed the east could use 1,000,000 tons of Alberta coal a year.

Gives Nature A Helping Hand In Destroying Harmful Insects

By HOWARD DEWALD

(CPC Correspondent)

PHOENIX, Ariz.—Many a farmer's glad G. C. Quick of Phoenix is a ladies' man.

Quick deals in ladybugs and there's nothing a ceratophyllus rust-detractor to scientists) ladybug likes better than to feast on scale insects, aphids,

and other small, soft-bodied creatures

injurious to alfalfa, cotton, sorghums and other crops.

Quick's bugs have saved many farmers from ruin by ridding their fields of harmful insect infestations.

The ex-croplander is an international broker in the ladybug field.

He ships boxes of ladybug to steady customers in many sections of Canada, the United States and Mexico.

The farmers open the two-gallon cartons in the field and the tiny,

orange-shelled beetles go to work.

They have ravenous appetites and by the time they go through a field

the farmer has no worries about losing his crop to harmful insects.

The ladybugs—which aren't really bugs but beetles—are non-vegetarians. They turn up their noses at plants, and when they've eaten all the insects in a field they fly away, either to other fields or back to the mountains and foothills to feast on the harmful insects that live in wooded areas.

Quick ships the beetles in two-gallon cartons which hold 270,000 and more.

Utah and Colorado. For most, it's a part-time job. A few collectors do nothing else.

"In winter months the ladybugs hibernate and in summer they rest in large bunches," says Quick. "We often find them crawling from under snow, and gathering is then done by spreading a large canvas on the surface of the snow. They cling to the canvas in mass and are easily shaken into containers.

"When we find them hanging on bushes we spread the canvas on the ground, shake them to it, and pack them away."

Quick makes a semi-annual tour of his collectors, hauls the beetles back to Phoenix in a specially equipped truck, and places them in cold storage to await shipment. From collection to shipment time, they are kept in artificial hibernation at temperatures from 36 to 45 degrees.

The ladybugs are usually placed in the fields in the early morning or at night. They are set at the base of plants and an effort is made not to excite them or they will fly away.

"It's a nature's way of taking care of infestation," Quick says. "I just kind of help nature along by getting bugs at the right place at the right time."

Most farmers place regular orders with Quick and set the beetles in their fields at certain times each year.

G. C. Quick has 270,000 bug-killers here, all with hearty appetites after a long period of hibernation.—Central Press Canadian Wirephoto sell for $16. Fine cones are placed inside the boxes to give the ladybugs

a greater area to cling to and prevent them clustering so tightly that some suffocate.

The last two months Quick sold

$3,000 worth and took orders for $15,000 more. Many florists account for some of this business, although it is small compared to the volume in agriculture.

Quick has from 25 to 30 collectors working for him in the mountain and foothill country of Arizona, New Mexico, California, Oregon, Nevada, and Idaho.

Quick was in the cropland business when he became interested in bugs. He learned that cropland not only killed the bad bugs. It did away with the good ones, too.

So he started dabbling in ladybugs, finding how they worked and what they could do. Once he ac-identally dropped a box of ladybugs in his house. The result was complete cockroach eradication and when the news spread he was swamped almost daily with orders from homeowners who had cockroach problems.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

"DILEMMA"

By RUSSELL WILSEY

The Pretty Waitress' Smile Unnerved Mr. Saxby

It was a dilemma, the sort of situation Mr. Saxby would have taken great pains to avoid, had he known it was coming.

It was Jane's fault, really, he thought, as the subway rumbled beneath the city. If his wife hadn't insisted on that new topcoat, it never would have happened. It was natural for him to mistake one like it in the restaurant.

"Don't forget, Edward," his wife had said, "you get that coat this morning, before it turns chilly. I don't want to fret over your colds another winter."

And so when Frankings, the outside salesman, had phoned in that he would be ill, and it had fallen upon Mr. Saxby's shoulders to make the long trip uptown to see about an order, Mr. Saxby had bought the coat at the first store he found.

The train groaned to a halt and Mr. Saxby bolted through the doors. The bulky object in the back pocket of the coat Mr. Saxby had mistaken for his own banged against his leg. His feeling of terror returned to the pocket and touched the object, his fingers tingling from the contact. He hadn't noticed it until he was on the subway, heading back downtown. It was a gun.

Mr. Saxby hadn't studied it closely. His eyes had buggered at the sight of it, and then he had jammed it back into the pocket. No one in the subway car seemed to have noticed it. For that Mr. Saxby was thankful. He did know it was heavy and shiny.

The dilemma facing Mr. Saxby was what to do with it. His first reaction, and the one on which he was still operating, was to take the coat, and the gun, back to the restaurant.

Who would carry a gun? Mr. Saxby had asked himself. Certainly not a policeman. The police had hip holsters. And plainclothes detectives always carried them in shoulder holsters. Mr. Saxby read detective stories, and knew this. Only a certain type of person carried one in his pocket!

But what could he do? Suppose he walked up to the policeman on the corner, pulled out the gun, and said,

"Here." Why, he might be shot before he could get out another word. Even if he went to a police station, the desk sergeant might not think much of his story of a coat mix-up in a restaurant. And the police were very strict about guns without permits. In all probability they'd lock him up until his story was checked on. And then if Jane heard about it . . . Mr. Saxby refused to consider the results.

Well, whose coat did he have? Seeing the front of the restaurant again reminded him instantly of the heavy-set, swarthy man who had come in after him and taken the booth behind his. Vaguely Mr. Saxby recalled the man removing a topcoat before he sat down. Of course, that had been the real owner. And something about his looks had disturbed Mr. Saxby even then.

Mr. Saxby reached the restaurant and went in. It wasn't until the doors were swinging shut behind him that he realized what he'd done. Instinctively he'd returned to the restaurant, a place he never wanted to see again.

He half turned, to go out, but it was too late. The waitress was hurrying toward him.

"You came back after all," she said, smiling.

"Yes, well . . . you see . . ." Mr. Saxby halted. Confused, he began to shed the strange coat.

"I thought you'd be back," she went on. "The other man didn't do anything about his coat until you were gone."

"That's it," Mr. Saxby mumbled, "but there's something I have to explain. Suddenly, having the pretty waitress smiling up at his face completely unnerved Mr. Saxby. The prospect of being able to reveal his awful secret to a sympathetic soul overwhelmed him.

"I found this in the pocket," he said, gingerly removing the gun. "Oh, yeah," the waitress answered, "that's Joe's."

"Joe's?"

"Oh, that's Joe's coat," she said. She took the pistol from Mr. Saxby's nervous fingers and pointed it at his chest.

"It's his Jimmie," she explained as she pulled the trigger.

A cigarette popped out of the muzzle.

"Have a cigarette," she asked with a smile.

"No, thank you," Mr. Saxby said weakly, "no, thank you. My wife doesn't like me to smoke."

If You Get Lost While Hiking, Follow These Tips

1. When you decide you are definitely lost, STOP, sit down and try to figure out where you are.
 2. Try to estimate the direction of your last known point of reference, using the sun, moon, or moss on shady side of tree trunks as a rough guide.
 3. Follow ridges and water courses down stream—they ultimately should lead you to civilization.
 4. Don't try to travel in the dark. Light a fire in a safe place and make yourself as comfortable as possible until daylight.
 5. Mark your trail as you go with sticks or rocks to make it easier for searchers to find you.
 6. The number 3 is a distress call in any form—three whistles, three flashes on a flash light, or three puffs of smoke from a fire. Forest Rangers are constantly on the lookout for the unusual—they undoubtedly will investigate your signal.
 7. Follow the Forest Service's advice—Don't yell, don't run, don't worry, don't quit!
- If you plan to hike in strange territory, carry a flashlight and a few hooks, matches in a water-proof box, a compass, a light concentrated food, and a strong knife.

Chocolate Chip Oatmeal Cookies

2 1/2 dozen
One cup sifted enriched flour, 1/2 teaspoon soda, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup shortening, soft, 1/2 cup brown sugar, 1/2 cup granulated sugar, 1 egg 2 tablespoons water, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, 1 1/2 cups rolled oats (quick or old-fashioned, uncooked), 1 cup semi-sweet chocolate chips or pieces, 1 cup chopped nuts.

Sift together flour, soda and salt into bowl. Add shortening, sugars, egg, water and vanilla. Beat until smooth, about two minutes. Fold in rolled oats, chocolate chips and nuts. Drop from a teaspoon onto greased baking sheet and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 12 to 15 minutes.

Chocolate Cookies

1/2 cup sifted flour
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup shortening, soft
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon water
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
2 ounces chocolate, melted

Sift together flour, soda and salt into bowl. Add shortening, sugar, egg, water, vanilla and chocolate (cooled to lukewarm). Beat until smooth, about 2 minutes. Blend in rolled oats. Shape dough in rolls about 1-inch in diameter. Wrap in waxed paper and chill thoroughly. Cut in thin slices and place on ungreased baking sheet. Bake cookies in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 10 to 12 minutes. Makes 4 dozen cookies.

Chocolate Fudge Buns

One-half cup shortening, 1/2 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 1 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1/2 teaspoon baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 package semi-sweet chocolate, melted, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, 1/2 cup chopped nuts.

Cream shortening, add sugar gradually, blending together until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Sift flour with the baking powder and salt. Add to mixture; blend well to form dough. Add melted chocolate, vanilla and nuts. Mix thoroughly.

Drop by teaspoonfuls on an ungreased baking sheet. Top with additional chopped nuts if desired. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about 15 minutes.

Fruit Fingers

1 cup honey
1/2 cup shortening
1 cup water (boiling)
2 cups seeded raisins
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups soda
2 teaspoons water
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder

Nuts, cherries
Put first six ingredients in a saucepan—boil three minutes and cool. Add salt and soda dissolved in water. Stir. Sift flour and baking powder three times—then stir in, pour into a pan 10 inches square that has been greased and floured. When half batter has been spread over surface, then pour remainder of batter in and spread. Bake at 325 degrees for 50 to 60 minutes. When cold cut in fingers—may be iced and decorated to suit the occasion.

Nut Snacks

Bottom Layer
1 cup white sugar
1 tablespoon butter
1 1/2 cup sifted flour
2 egg yolks
1 teaspoon baking powder

Combine the above ingredients and spread evenly in a greased cake pan, 8 inches square.

Top Layer

2 well-beaten egg whites
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup chopped nuts
Combine ingredients and spread mixture over bottom layer. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 20-25 minutes. When cool, cut into squares.

Raspberry Cream Concoctios

Cookies: 1/2 cup butter, 1/2 cup powdered sugar, 1/2 cup milk, 1 cup cake flour, sifted, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract.

Cream butter, add sugar gradually. Stir in milk a little at a time. Add flour and vanilla extract. Spread very thin with a broad, long-bladed knife on a well-buttered inverted dripping pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until delicately browned (about 10 to 12 minutes). Remove from oven and quickly cut into 3-inch squares. Roll in the shape of a cornucopia. If cookies become too crisp to roll, return to oven to soften. It is important to work quickly to get the best results.

Filling: 1 1/2 plants heavy cream (whipped), 1 cup raspberries, crushed, 1/4 cup powdered sugar.

Mix whipped cream, sugar and raspberries. Fill cooled cookies with raspberry whipped cream mixture.

Cocoanut Macaroons

1/2 cup sweetened condensed milk, 3 cups shredded cocoanut, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Mix condensed milk, cocoanut and vanilla. Spread mixture on ungreased baking sheet, about 1 inch apart. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 8 to 10 minutes or until a delicate brown. Remove from pan at once. Makes about 30 cookies.

Walnut Date Squares

1 cup date
1/2 cup water. Boil these together until thick and let cool.
Mix as for piecrust.
6 tablespoons shortening
1/2 cup sugar
2 egg yolks
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 cup flour

Pack in pan and spread with date mixture. Beat 2 eggs with water with 1 cup brown sugar, spread on top and sprinkle with walnuts. Bake 1/2 hour in oven 350 degrees F.

Tutti Fruit Squares

Beat 2 eggs until light. Gradually add 1 cup fruit sugar and add 3 tablespoons melted butter. Combine and add:
1 cup chopped dates
1/2 cup raisins
1/2 cup chopped cherries
3 tablespoons chopped candied pineapple
1/2 cup chopped peel
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1/2 teaspoon vanilla

Sift together 1/2 cup of flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Add to mixture. Spread on greased 8 inch pan. Bake 20 minutes in 350 degree oven.

Howdian Dream Bars

1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup brown sugar
1 cup flour
2 eggs
1 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup shredded cocoanut
1 cup corn flakes

Blend butter and sugar thoroughly. Add flour and blend well with fork or dough blender. Press mixture evenly and firmly into bottom of shallow baking pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 15 minutes or until delicately browned. Beat eggs well, add sugar gradually and continue beating until mixture is light and fluffy. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Drop by spoonfuls on top of previously baked crust and spread evenly. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 25 minutes. Cut into squares while still warm. Yield 40 bars (8x13 inch pan).

Cherry Snacks

Rub together 1 cup of flour and 1/2 cup of butter until crumbly. Pat into greased pan.

Mix together:
1 1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
1/2 cup fine cocoanut
1/2 pound glazed cherries
2 eggs, well beaten
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
2 tablespoons flour

Spread this over first mixture and bake at 300 degrees until brown.

Butterscotch Squares

1/2 cup butter
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
1 cup pastry flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon vanilla

Cook sugar and butter until well blended. When cool to lukewarm add 1 unbeaten egg and beat well. Add flour, baking powder, salt and vanilla. Sprinkle with nuts if desired. Bake in slow oven, 350 degrees until golden.

Pineapple Squares

1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon vanilla

Mix together and roll out to line a cake tin, then drain one small can of crushed pineapple, spread over lining, then cover with:
2 cups shredded cocoanut
1 cup sugar
2 eggs

1 tablespoon butter

Spread over pineapple, bake in oven 350 degrees F. for 30 minutes.

Cycling Safety Rules

This is the season when millions of youngsters take to the streets and highways on bicycles. For their protection, they should learn and practice the rules of safe bicycling.

To help the young bicyclists, and old ones, too, safety experts of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. have suggested the following rules:

"Don't weave in and out of traffic in competition with motor vehicles; you and your bike are almost sure to come off second best in a collision. Be particularly careful at intersections.

"Exercise extreme caution, always, when coming out of or turning into driveways.

"Never—oh, never!—hitch onto trucks or automobiles!

"Don't ride two people on a single bicycle; it's not built for two—with safety; ride single file on the highway.

"Use lights at night, and at all times keep the bicycle—especially lights and braking mechanism in good repair.

"Observe all traffic rules and signs; they apply to you just as much as to the biggest cross-country transport truck."

BRITISH TRAILER HAS UPSTAIRS

LONDON.—Permanent homes on wheels—They're known as trailers in Canada—have solved the living problems of more than 300,000 people in Britain. The current independent public display of the Caravan Residents Association shows just what can be done with these mobile homes.

Many of the features are familiar to Canadians, such as glass wall in-lining, built-in kitchen and bath, rooms, hot and cold water systems and convertible furniture.

But among the new types on view here are two-story caravans. One has two bedrooms upstairs with a central "staircase" from the entrance hall.

Another model includes a main room that changes with a few adjustments from a buffet dining-room into a settee lounge or a double bedroom.

At birth, a baby elephant weighs from 160 to 200 pounds.

INCREASED COYOTE ACTIVITY REPORTED

Renewed interest in Alberta's province-wide campaign for the control of coyotes is reported by W. Lobay, Supervisor of Crop Protection. Three new control areas have recently been established, making a total of 57 now in operation.

Farmers are now reporting more coyote activity than has been in evidence during the past three months, and some of them are becoming concerned about the safety of their sheep and poultry. In these cases, Mr. Lobay advises the re-setting of cyanide guns that may have been removed earlier this year. In some cases the effectiveness of the lure may have deteriorated, he says, and pest control officers should be approached for fresh supplies.

The use of coyote getters have proved very effective during the past winter, and loss of sheep in some areas has been eliminated entirely. There is no district in the Province in which similar results cannot be attained if a little more care is exercised in putting out the guns in the proper places, Mr. Lobay says.

Funeral Held For Pioneer Resident

MRS. MARGERY MCBRIDE

Death has taken one of our pioneer citizens in the passing of Mrs. Margery McBride, widow of the late Chas. McBride.

Mrs. McBride passed away on June 28 at Killam Hospital at the age of 77 years. She was born December 28, 1874 at Glenham, Ont., and married to Chas. McBride in September, 1912, coming to Alberta soon after and settled on a homestead south of Phillips where she resided until after the death of her husband in 1942.

After spending two years with her sons she moved to Viking where she lived until her health began to fail. Since then she has lived with son Clive.

She was a woman of sterling character and a nurse to many who were ill and always proved willing and capable. While in her early days, she became a member of the Presbyterian Church and lived a devout Christian all her life.

Left to mourn her loss are two sons, Clive and Merlin, residing in the district, six grandchildren, three brothers, Robert of Viking, Jack of Bellingham, Wash, Loch-lin of Gravenhurst, Ont., one sister, Annie, of Toronto, besides a host of friends. Rev. Forster of Viking conducted the service at the United Church, Kinsella, with burial at the Kinsella Cemetery.

Pall bearers were Mr. A. Squair, Joe Harding, Gordon Lancaster, Alfred McMurray, Grant MacGregor and Jim Woodway.

Floral tributes were from: The family; Bob and May McPherson; The Woodway family; Marge and Dave Henderson; Everett, Ellen and family; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Lancaster and family; J. L. McPherson and family; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gilbertson and family; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stretch and Mrs. Green; Mrs. Lancaster and Irene; Mr. and Mrs. Grant MacGregor and family; Mr. and Mrs. Leif Osbeck and family; Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Bruhaug and family; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Harding and family; Marge Gray; Ben, Laura and baby; Lil, Stub and boys; Mrs. Stevens and George.

Farm Workers Wanted In Ontario

For the tenth consecutive year farm workers from Alberta are required in Ontario, according to W. C. Carnhill, manager, National Employment Service, Edmonton.

Low cost fares enable farm workers from any point in Alberta to move to distribution centres in Ontario on payment of $10.00 only. Return transportation is available between August 15 and 31 at a cost of $11.50.

The low fares are made possible by subsidies jointly financed by the province of Ontario and Federal Government, under the Federal-Provincial Farm Labour program and by special tariffs granted by the railways. The Provincial Government also contributes to the success of the project by assisting in recruiting and dispatching workers through their farm help service.

National Employment offices will make all arrangements for the transfer of workers to Ontario.

Highest mountain peak in Canada is Mount Logan.

World of Wheat

Seed Growers and Agricultural Scientists

During the last part of June there will be held in Ontario two important agricultural meetings, the Canadian Seed Growers' Association and the Agricultural Institute of Canada. The Agricultural Institute, holding its 33rd annual meeting, comprises some 3,000 of the scientific agriculturists of Canada who in every field of scientific effort investigate, discover, experiment with and make known to farmers new and valuable principles and methods of agriculture.

The Canadian Seed Growers' Association, holding its 48th annual meeting, comprises some 4,000 professional seed growers who take the small handful of new varieties and improved strains of cereals, forage, field root and garden vegetable crops produced by professional plant breeders, multiply these into larger quantities and make them available to farmers without any loss of truthfulness or purity; and all under the rigid rules and regulations of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association.

These two bodies of men are part of the very foundation of Canada's agricultural production and prosperity. They have much to do with the continual improvement of Canada's crops and livestock and with the maintenance of that high quality upon which Canada depends for the sale of her export agricultural products. The members of these two organizations render important services to farmers. Their work, therefore, is worthy of being esteemed, respected and appreciated by all of us.

The Threat or 15-B Stem Rust

The wheat crops of the United States and Western Canada are threatened by a new race of rust 15-B and perhaps by other new races of rust.

The latest information is that the risk of damage to this coming crop in Canada is not very great, for much less than the usual amount of stem rust has been found in Texas and in Central and Northern Mexico (the source of most of our rust epidemics). Naturally if these rust spores—which are present to some extent—multiply greatly under favorable conditions and if strong winds blow from the south through the United States and into western Canada and if the spring wheat crops should be abundant with wet and muggy weather some damage is possible. There is, of course, always the risk of an epidemic starting in any locality where barberry bushes are present and from which the rust spores can quickly spread to grain. That is why it is so important that every barberry bush in the United States and Canada should be destroyed as soon as it is located.

Long Distance

The editor was busy at his desk when the phone rang. An irate subscriber was on the other end. "I noticed in your paper," the reader shouted, "that you printed I was dead."

"Is that so?" was the indifferent response. "And where are you calling from?"

Grain By Weight

A recommendation that estate and federal agencies be encouraged to use the hundredweight rather than the bushel in their reports and forecasts was made at the annual meeting of commissioners of weights and measures in Washington last month. It is also recommended that each state introduce a bill that will do away with the weight per bushel for all commodities.

At various times the Wheat Pools of western Canada have made suggestions towards the elimination of the bushel as a measure for grain. The fact is that grain is actually sold by the pound and not by the bushel. The bushel is a measure of capacity and contains 2,219.36 cubic inches, which is equivalent to a cube the side of which measures slightly more than 13 inches. In this country 60 pounds of wheat is calculated as a bushel.

Social Credit Keeps Edge B.C. Election Count

VANCOUVER, July 6—British Columbia's marathon election count pushed ahead slowly during the week-end with the CCF and Social Credit still battling to obtain the largest group in the 48-member legislature.

Three more seats were decided Saturday night, bringing the total to 38. All went to the better Liberal party. This was the standing until counting resumes Monday:

	Elected	Leading
S.C.	15	2
CCF	14	6
Liberal	6	3
P.C.	2	2
Labour	1	1
Total	48

In addition, there was no official report from Vancouver East, where CCF Leader Harold Winch won re-election on the basis of the unofficial complete first count election night, June 12.

Mrs. Nancy Hodges, Speaker in the last Legislature, was re-elected on the Liberal ticket in Victoria. Education Minister W. T. Straith also was returned in Victoria.

Mr. Straith was the second cabinet minister to win re-election. The others were Forests Minister E. T. Kenney in Skeena. Three others, including Premier Byron Johnson, had been defeated and Attorney-General Gordon Wilson was trailing in Vancouver Centre.

Social Credit And CCF Nominations

At the Social Credit convention held at Bruce on Saturday, Earl Hardy, M.L.A. of Holden, was nominated as candidate for the Bruce constituency in the forthcoming provincial election.

Sigurd Lefarud, barrister of Viking, was nominated as CCF standard bearer in Bruce constituency at the convention held in Holden on Monday.

The Viking creamery score was 97.0.

Modern mechanized equipment has made "muscle-farming" out-of-date

Do it with machines—not with muscles—is the modern concept of farm operation. The work can be done easier, quicker, better, and at less cost the machine way—and there is less worry and less expense when you use machine help instead of inexperienced and costly labor. No man who has experienced the many advantages of operating with modern equipment would want to go back to the days of "muscle-farming."

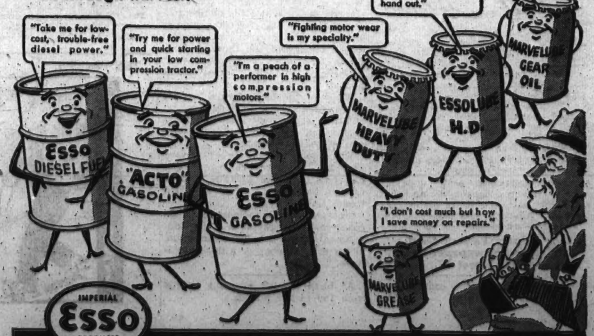

Some of the greatest advances in mechanization in the history of agriculture have been made in recent years. Your Massey-Harris local dealer will be glad to give you full details of the complete line of Massey-Harris modern farm machines.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

The Widow's Might

By Louis
Arthur Cunningham • The Might of Alice Conway
Was Revealed in Her Book.

THERE was amused consternation among the fair dwellers at Beachmont when they learned that the new tenant of Clifftop Cottage was a widow. Several had seen her—fluffy young thing, not over twenty-five and sweet enough to eat. At least they said that until they learned that she had built a monument over a husband.

But Alice Conway had not reached twenty when she married John Terris. He departed this life two years later and when she came to Beachmont she was still a year under twenty-five. And in all truth she was lovely. The only thing made-up about Alice was her mind. She had made up her mind to acquire another husband.

Of course, the Beachmonters suspected her designs. Every young woman held more lightly to her man, and steered him away from the seductive smile of Mrs. Terris. But, contrarily, Alice kept to herself and did not join in any of the gay parties that enlivened the sun-burned life of Beachmont. It was breathlessly rumored that she wrote stories for the magazines and was busy on a novel. Everyone was eaten with curiosity. Mrs. Terris, they discovered, had two servants and both were excellent cooks. No one could grasp why a lone widow in a tiny cottage should have such an imposing staff.

Smilingly she admitted she was writing a book.

"What sort of book?" the curious asked.

"Oh, a domestic novel," Alice told them mysteriously. She made them delicious tea and fed them cake such as they never before had tasted.

"I love good cooking," she said. "I have two of the best kitchen-aiders in the country. Any time you care to run in . . ."

Oh, she was very nice to everybody. At the same time she made it clear that her business was work, not pleasure. Gradually the suspicions dwindled.

But there they were much astray. Alice had already picked out the man she wanted and had thrown out the bait for him, or rather her visitors had cast it for her.

There was at Beachmont that summer a man much sought by women . . . Peter Alanson, a novelist. Peter was one of those rare novelists who make money by their books and do not have to peddle poetry and articles on the home-disorderly to buy breakfast food. Peter was rich, handsome in a cold, stern way, and indifferent to women young, middle-aged or well-preserved.

The fair young creatures at Beachmont all had tried for Peter. He had not yielded. Instead he had caricatured them in his books. They had turned to tell him that a rival light shone from Clifftop. Alice had admitted that she sold things to the magazines . . . under a pen-name, of course. They told him it was his duty to visit a sister-author and swap a few lies with her.

So Peter went and came back a different man.

Try as they would, the summer-folk could not find what attracted Peter, the unattractive, to the widow. Was it just a common love of literature? It was not. Peter was unmistakably in love. What secret charm had this woman? What was the widow's might? Peter Alanson waxed fat, more contented, more in love as the golden months of summer passed and the mosquitoes' destructive life was at its hey-day.

Other men followed Peter's example. All were affected in the same way. All fell in love with her and would sooner visit Clifftop than sit in at a poker game. Jealousy came to guard his experience and not one would tell the wherefore.

But Peter Alanson was far favored one. They were fellow-scribes. Peter spoke mysteriously of the new book that she was going to bring out in the autumn.

"It is," he told a select few, "a masterpiece. It can safely say that I or any other living novelist, have not done anything nearly so good. We could not, because Alice is a genius . . . a rare and beautiful genius."

In September, a week before the coming of the book, Alice and Peter were married. A horde of hungry-eyed, envious men watched Peter take the pretty widow to wife and then when Alice and Peter were far away on their honeymoon there came to the puzzled beach-dwellers some, savoring copies of Alice Alanson's book. And the great secret of the widow's charm was out. They were photographed copies, and every man received his with delight and love for her who had sent it. The book was "The Clifftop Book of Diet Recipes or How to Keep a Husband," by Alice Conway. It was dedicated to Peter Alanson, lover and judge of a good cook.

Amiable Skunk

"SNOWDEN, Sask.—A strange noise in a grain elevator here turned out to be a skunk that got caught on the conveyor belt from the elevator pit. Calm but groggy, the animal rambled off without incident.

No Grasshopper Threat

REGINA.—For the first year since 1948, a major grasshopper control campaign is not expected to be necessary in Saskatchewan, according to a recent statement by R. E. McKenzie, director of the provincial agricultural department's plant industry branch. Mr. McKenzie pointed out that the most recent cycle of heavy infestation which began to build up about 1946 had reached its height in 1948, 1949 and 1950, with the 1951 infestation having been less severe than forecast, due to unfavorable weather conditions.

Salads For Health And Beauty

Summer is the season of salads and no wonder. Properly prepared and eaten, they can help to make the hot weather quite bearable.

Use fresh fruits and vegetables. Never soak them any longer than is necessary to get them clean. Precious minerals are lost in water. Eat the skins of the fruits and vegetables whenever possible.

Salads are extremely versatile, too. They can replace heat-generating foods or stand alone as complete meals. On occasion they may take the place of either soup or dessert. And if you are interested in losing weight or just maintaining present poundage, you will find salads one important solution.

As a further aid in keeping your weight down when you are eating salads, substitute lemon juice for the dressing. Be original in your salad planning too. You have many variations to choose from.

Always a favorite is the mixed fruit bowl. Complete with orange sections, sliced bananas and strawberries, it benefits you both health and beauty-wise. Another delicious combination is romaine-leaves topped with a whole ripe tomato, unpeeled cucumber slices and green pepper rings.

Raw vegetable or cooked vegetable plates are also fine warm-weather meals. Then there's the old standby, mixed green salad. Any one of these fine dishes offers you a delectable meal, but you don't pay the price demanded by rich, starchy foods.

Funny and Otherwise

The second floor tenant called the party living below and shouted, "If you don't stop playing that saxophone, I'll go crazy."

"I guess it's too late," came the reply. "I stopped an hour ago."

"Why didn't you dance last night?"

"I had on a rented Tuxedo."

"Well, what of it?"

"But it was rented where it would show."

The busy film magnate asked his secretary where his pencil was.

"It's behind your ear," she replied.

"Come, come," snapped the big shot. "I'm a busy man, which ear?"

In an American alibiard noted for its hustle and speed the stage was set for a launching ceremony. The distinguished guest, holding the traditional bottle of champagne, exclaimed in some bewilderment, "But there's no bubble!"

Replied the foramen: "Start swinging that bottle, lady. There will be."

A very plain bishop was visiting one of his rectors who had a small daughter. When the little girl was brought into the room she set down and stared at him.

"Darling," said her mother, "go and shake hands."

But the child went on staring, and then, as if recollection had come to her, she said, "I once gave you some nuts at the zoo."

"What would you rather have," little Johnny was asked, "a new baby brother or a baby sister?"

"If it's all the same to you," replied Johnny, after careful deliberation, "I would rather have a Newfoundland dog."

A young soldier was hit by a bullet in a battle. Thinking he was mortally wounded, he whispered to a friend:

"Write to Mamin. Give her my love, and tell her my last thoughts were for her. Carbon copies to Sadie, Peggy and Kathleen."

"Yes, I got two orders on my first day as a salesman."

"Get out and stay out."

Mrs. Jones was vigorously powdering her face before going out.

"Why do you go to all that trouble?" asked her husband, who was waiting impatiently.

"Modesty, my dear," was the reply. "I've no desire to shine in public."

Do You Know That . . .

Horses have the largest eyes of all land animals.

For Pipeline

Men, Machines To Battle Mountains

JASPER, Alta.—An army of 1,000 men whose weapons range from double-bladed axes to giant ditch-digging machines are settling down to a back-breaking, machine-shattering assault on the Canadian Rockies.

They are pipelineers, who in two years will literally claw out a five-foot-deep trench from Edmonton to Vancouver and bury in it the $52,000,000 Trans-Mountain oil pipeline. Already they have laid 10 miles of pipe—the first 10 of 700 miles—in the Yellowhead pass west of Jasper, the key to one of the most difficult and complex pipeline jobs ever attempted by men and machines.

The task is so stupendous that none but a pioneer who helped push the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk Pacific railways—now merged as the C.N.R.—through the same mountain pass some 40 years ago can believe the hardships to be defeated by men and machines.

When the railroads went through, men were expendable. This time, as the oil line goes through mountains, men are expendable.

By mid-summer, almost $5,000,000 worth of machinery will be in the Rockies. The great size of the pipeline machines will have been rebuilt several times and practically worn out before the job is done.

When the Trans-Mountain pipeline will be hidden from the passerby. It will be nothing but an earthen scar winding its way through ferns, muskeg, and mountain from Edmonton to Vancouver. Only its pump stations and a few valves will be visible.

Saskatchewan Boy Returning Home From Toronto By Bicycle

TORONTO.—Francis Morin, 20, is on his way again.

Two years ago he arrived here on a 2,500-mile bicycle trip from Saskatchewan to take a Ryerson Institute of Technology course in watchmaking. The course completed, he left recently on his bike to see Washington, New York, Boston and Halifax before returning to set up shop with his father in his home town of Gravelbourg.

Morin likes travelling by bike and says he can live on $1 a day.

"It's a hard life," he says, "and a radio to help me to sleep under the stars. That's all I need."

Recipe

CREAM PUFFS FOR THE FAMILY

Many homemakers consider cream puffs or eclairs as something quite beyond their culinary skill. These delectable confections are among one of the easiest desserts to prepare. Made in a generous variety of sizes, they make a good family dessert or in tiny bite-sized versions they grace the most formal or informal table. They make a nice change from the fancy sandwich for refreshments also. They may be made in small or medium in size and filled with chicken, or egg salad and have one bit of lettuce or onion tucked into them for a touch of colour.

Cream puffs and eclairs are the same thing, differing only in their shape. Following is a recipe which makes a delicious crisp puff.

Cream Puffs or Eclairs
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1/2 cup butter
1 cup milk or water
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 eggs

Heat the milk or water and add the butter. Bring to the boiling point and add the flour and salt. Cook and stir until the batter leaves the sides of the pan and clings together forming a ball around the spoon. Remove from the heat at once and add first egg in until thoroughly blended before adding the second one. Drop from a spoon forming two inch rounds heaped in the centre and two inches apart on a greased cookie sheet. These will form bite-puffs. For small bite-sized puffs, drop the dough from the half-teaspoon or teaspoon of a set of measuring spoons. For eclairs shape the dough into oblongs heaping it up well in the centre. Bake in a hot oven, 400 deg. F. for 30 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 deg. F. and bake 5 minutes longer or cook from done. To test move one puff from pan and cut slit in side to see if cooked right through. If not done the puff will be doughy inside. Yield 6 to 8 large puffs or 25 bouchées.

When cold, cut a slit in side or top of puff and fill with sweetened plain or cocoa-flavored, whipped cream, custard or lemon filling. Decorate with especially nice filled with ice cream and topped with chocolate or butter-scoot sauce.

Serve puffs in place of patty shells and fill with creamed eggs, chicken, meat or fish.
